

Luckily or unluckily for Francisco, he's a demon. Not a plain dragon, or any kind of plain creature for that matter. He was a demon, a bringer of destruction, pain, and sin. He doesn't abide by any rules. Especially the rules that may or may not say he had to stay in one form. His dragon parts morphed into human parts, and he wore 13th century clothes. Clothes like a tattered green tunic, accompanied with green pantaloons and old green leather shoes, from before Nike was invented. Why so many shades of only green? It's his favorite color, don't judge him. He was the spitting image of a modern day man! Modern in the 13th century, that is. Definitely not the 21st century.

Walking around central London, he wandered aimlessly into St. James Park. Pigeons. Something familiar. Amongst the hundreds of rushing humans, he stood out. He looked like he got lost on the way to the renaissance faire. He searched his pockets for something, something he knew was there. He couldn't remember what it was. He pulled out a drawstring pouch, opening it the moment it reached his hand. It was filled with bits of grain. Standing in front of a flock of the world's most common birds, he tossed the grain to them. The birds gleefully pecked at the centuries-old grain. Francisco smiled, emptying half his pouch before remembering something and walking away.

Francisco had just woken up from a particularly spectacular nap. Well, he'd say it was spectacular. It's doubtful that a 800 years or longer nap trapped in a damp mountain unwillingly as a dragon would be something anybody would call spectacular. He'd probably say clawing his way out of the mountain was the best part of it all.

Of Dragons and Bookshops
by evilangel69

Summary: "A demon from medieval times wakes up in the 21st century."

No archive warnings apply, Aziraphale/Crowley (Good Omens), Maggie/Nina (Good Omens), Minor Maggie/Nina (Good Omens), Aziraphale (Good Omens), Crowley (Good Omens), Muriel (Good Omens), Pestilence (Good Omens), Francisco Birdie (Good Omens), Francisco Birdie is an OC, The Bookshop (Good Omens), Pigeons, The Bentley (Good Omens), Caring Aziraphale (Good Omens, Ineffable Idiots (Good Omens), Ineffable Parents (Good Omens)

STARVED FOR MORE?

READ THE FULL FANFIC ON ARCHIVEOFOUROWN.NET WHILE YOU

WAIT FOR THE NEXT ZINE TO BE DRAWN!

Of Dragons and Bookshops The zine Adaptation #1

WRITTEN BY: EVILANGEL69 ON AO3
ILLUSTRATED BY: @SOUTHERNPANSYY

A GOOD OMENS FANFIC

TAGS ON THE BACK COVER :)